

Presents

Pedagogy 201

for Distance Learning: Enhancing Interactivity

Live via Satellite and Internet

September 29, 2005

2:30 - 4:00pm ET

1:30 - 3:00pm CT

Panelists

Peter Shea, Ph.D.,
Assistant Professor,
Educational Theory
and Practice, School of Information
Science and Policy
Studies University at Albany, SUNY

Nada Dabbagh,
Ph.D., Associate
Professor,
Instructional
Design and Technology,
George Mason
University

Rena Palloff,
Ph.D., Managing
Partner Crossroads
Consulting Group
and Faculty
Member, Fielding
Graduate University

Keith Pratt, Ph.D., Managing Partner, Crossroads Consulting Group and Associate Dean of Distance Learning and Instructional Technology, Northwest Arkansas
Community College

For distance learning and online instructors wanting to learn even more ways to improve their online courses. Join moderator Peter Shea September 29 as he delves deeper into the pedagogical influences behind enhancing interaction in online courses.

This program will examine:

- Pedagogical values for a positive online environment
- Methods for building a stronger online community
- Best practices for improving participation and collaboration

Campus Information

Who should attend: Full-time and adjunct faculty, Deans and Department Chairs, key IT staff